A gentleman professional killer with a bad case of OCD and zero tolerance for unsorted laundry, March isn't there to kill her...yet. He wants the diamond her late mother stole for a sinister criminal organization. Island agrees to help him find it, facing the kind of adversaries who dismember first and ask questions later. ### Editorial Review

Review

“The hilarious chapter headers—which I enjoyed as much as the rest of the book—set the tone of the book as one of over-the-top camp and a loving spoof of and homage to romantic suspense novels.” —Dear Author

“Spotless is a brilliantly written story with a difference. It crosses a few genres and brings something completely new to the table. It’s laugh-out-loud funny; it’s sweet and strangely romantic but in quite a unique way.” —Totally Booked

“The characters were beautifully done; they are fully developed; they make you laugh with them and appreciate their wit and charm. A truly 5 star novel that deserves tons of attention.” —Readers' Favorite

About the Author

Camilla Monk is a French native who grew up in a Franco-American family. After finishing her studies, she taught English and French in Tokyo before returning to France to work in advertising. Today, she’s a managing partner in a small ad agency, where her job is to handle all things web-related and make silly drawings on the whiteboard when no one is looking. Her writing credits include the English resumes and cover letters of a great many French friends, and some essays as well. She’s also the critically acclaimed author of a few passive-aggressive notes pasted in her building’s elevator.
